

SUPPORT POSTAL WORKERS' STRUGGLE

Gordon Brown has told posties to get back to work. Who is that with Maggie Thatcher??

against

- 40,000 job losses
- pay cuts
- privatisation
- pension cuts
- cuts to public services in YOUR home

Royal Mail staff have been forced into further strikes because their millionaire bosses - egged on by Gordon Brown's anti-trade union government - are out to crush the public service they provide.

- They want savage job cuts that would decimate the daily service provided to YOU in your home by these workers come rain, hail or snow.
- They want total flexibility in working arrangements - workers would be expected to be at the beck and call of management - compelled to start 2 hours earlier or 2 hours later than normal and work later when the bosses say so.
- They want to slaughter pension rights - a postie aged 40 with 20 years service would lose £61,000 in pension rights
- They want to fatten up the profitable bits of the service for privatisation - and shut down the rest, at terrible cost to YOU the public.

Don't let the millionaires and their government crush these public service workers - give generously to the collection for their hardship fund.

UNITE with workers in struggle

Thousands of workers have been forced to take strike action to defend their jobs, wages, conditions, and the public services they provide.

They deserve the widest possible public support.

POSTAL WORKERS are resisting 40,000 job losses; pay cuts with an offer that falls well below inflation; attacks on their pensions that means a postie aged 40 with 20 years service will lose £61,000 in their pension. The Royal Mail service is being run down, privatised, wrecked by the overpaid bosses and Brown government.

GLASGOW CITY COUNCIL DAY SERVICE WORKERS provide a lifeline, professional service to the most vulnerable people in our communities - those with complex learning and physical disabilities. The Labour City Council is cutting the service; closing Day Centres; cutting disabled people's bus services, and now wants to slash the staff's wages by £3-5,000. They are degrading and downgrading vitally needed staff, with hellish consequences. These workers have voted to strike in resistance.

The SSP supports workers in struggle. We oppose the New Labour government's attacks on pay, jobs and public services. We support united action across the public sector to resist this wholesale destruction by New Labour.

Send messages of support to these workers - invite them to speak at your union - give generously to hardship fund collections - UNITE!
